

About RED PHEASANT CREE NATION

Historically, the Red Pheasant Cree Nation hunted and fished along the Battle River; as settlers moved into the Battleford region they conducted trade. In 1878, the band settled on their reserve in the Eagle Hills, where the land was good for agriculture and there was enough forest to enable them to hunt. In recent years, Red Pheasant Cree Nation began investing in strategic land purchases with the proceeds from their Treaty Land Entitlement Agreements, and partnering with resource companies, such as Wascana Energy.

HIGHLIGHTS AND OPPORTUNITIES

- Red Pheasant Cree Nation signed Treaty 6 on September 9, 1876.
- Red Pheasant First Nation owns 14,000 acres of land in several communities around the Province, including 78.3 acres between Highways 12 and 16.
- Red Pheasant First Nation is a shareholder with Battleford Tribal Council (BTC) in Avord Towers (Saskatoon), Gamex Bingo, Gold Eagle Casino, General Plumbing (North Battleford) and Jackfish Lodge (Jackfish Lake).
- “Land acquisitions have created more business opportunities for band members including hunting, fishing, outfitting, and the mining of undisposed surface minerals, with a 50/50 split with the government.” (Saskatchewan Indian Cultural Centre)

HOME RESERVE INFORMATION

Location

The home reserve is located 33 kilometres south of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, in an area known as Eagle Hills.

Services

The Red Pheasant Cree Nation, through its partnership with the Battleford Tribal Council Chiefs, offers many services to community members including: housing, employment and training, income assistance, sports and recreation, and economic development.

On reserve facilities include: band office, band hall, community school and teacher’s residence, daycare, public works building, fire hall, full size arena, and a treatment centre.

Education

Red Pheasant’s first school opened in 1880, on land set aside for that purpose when the reserve was surveyed. Today, elementary children still attend the community school which is fully modernized. High School students attend school in nearby North Battleford.
